

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A coffee maker includes a body provided with a water storing space and a handle, and a heater positioned under the water storing space. The heater is made of an insulating plate and an electrically heating film formed on a lower surface of the 5 insulating plate. Then the heat generated by the electrically heating film heats up the water in the water storing space of the body for making coffee.